IT'S REALLY TOO BAD

Thank goodness, Hallowe'en is past. While there was really no serious damage done it will probably require an expenditure of cash on the part of citizens of from six hundred to a thousand dollars to replace their premises in as good a condition as before Hallowe'en, the damage being especially heavy with respect to outbuildings.

What particular kick the youngsters get out of hearing the crash of small buildings as they go over we cannot see. These buildings, especially when well made cost from $50 to 60 dollars, and they are so heavy that they cannot fall down without serious damage. One citizen told us Tuesday morning that he had two of them pushed over, the total cost of them being $110 and that after the vandalism Monday night they were not worth $10 for the two of them. This destruction should be frowned on by all, and parents of boys and girls who participate in such pranks should be frowned upon only all, and parents of boys and girls who participate in such pranks should warn them and see that property is not destroyed. There are numerous ways that the children may really enjoy themselves without causing financial loss to others. inconvenience is to an extent expected after Hallowe'en, and while even soaping windows and such like is a reflection on the morale of a community, these things are excusable, but not the wilful and deliberate destruction of property.

Our Chief of Police gave some of the boys rather a severe lesson when he lodged a dozen or so of them in the cells over night with bedding for about three or four of them and the remainder being obliged to roost on the floor. Next morning they were obliged to retrace their steps of the previous evening and for about half a day they were putting things to right that they had stirred up the night before. It may have been too severe, but it will undoubtedly be a good lesson for the boys in teaching them to respect the rights of others and not take things quite so much into their own hands on Hallowe'en. Because people will put up with a little is no reason why they should have their property damaged and be put to a loss of time and money to repair the damage of vandalism following Hallowe'en. As parents we could do a great deal to over come this bad practice. We should start thinking about it now.

HAVE YOU READ THE CLUBBING OFFERS

Have you read the Clubbing offers announced in this paper recently. There are some outstanding values there and worthy of the attention of prudent spenders.

We would just like to state for the benefit of some who seem to misunderstand, that this offer applies to new and renewal subscriptions both of any of the papers and magazines, and regardless of when your subscription comes due, if you are now subscribing, this subscription will simply be moved forward a year from the expiration date and your paper or magazine will keep coming.

At the prices one can hardly afford to pass these offers up, and anyway you look at it you are getting some of the reading practically free of charge when you consider how low the price has been made. Read them over again and see if your choice is listed there, then come in.

If you have already paid your subscription and would like any of these magazines all you will have to do is to call in and pay the difference and we will send for your magazines.

Our Edmonton Letter

(By T. B. Windross)

Edmonton, Oct. 31—With the campaigners on both sides in full cry as this week opened, there still was no sign of any great interest in the Athabasca provincial bye-election which is scheduled for next Monday.

The government's candidate is C. H. Tade, who won the seat in the province-wide Social Credit land-slide in 1935 and then resigned to give the seat to the late Charles C. Ross, appointed to the Cabinet. Opposing him is Rayner Whiteley, Liberal. Non-partisan observers in Edmonton believe the fight will be close.

Observers point out that the Athabasca electors must choose the lesser of two evils, whether to vote for a Social Credit or, in spite of the Aberhart governments' weak record during the past three years, or to elect a Liberal, who, although a splendid man, would be, in the legislature, just one more man in the still small opposition section. Electors have not forgotten what the late Mr. Ross told them when he wanted to resign his seat a few months before he died—that after repudiating the government he was able to do nothing in the way of getting concessions for Athabasca riding, and that as an opponent of the government he was more of a liability than an asset to his riding.

The voters know that a general election is not far away, and some of them believe that the only way to get any benefit for themselves from the present government before that campaign starts is to play along is an opportunity to oust the whole Aberhart regime.

Since the day of Mr. Ross' death, which made the bye-election necessary, the provincial government has spent an estimated $9,000 on roads in the constituency, with some expectation that such activity would make the government candidate popular. Incidentally, it is reported that when the Cabinet ordered all that sudden road construction started, it expected that the coming of autumn weather would soon force the "postponement" of its completion until the spring, after the government's kindly feelings and good intentions toward Athabasca had been shown. But the continuance of fine weather has deprived the government of any reason for stopping the work, and as a result it will have to continue right up to election day at least.

Generally, observers here at the capital believe that if the Social Credit does win the bye-election next week under such circumstances, it will not necessarily mean support of the government, but rather, political expediency. Unless, of course, the Social Credit majority should be so large as to dispel all doubt. If the anti-Aberhart candidate wins, on the other hand, in spite of the situation in Athabasca, it can be regarded as having a significance in proportion to Mr. Whiteley's majority.

Premier William Aberhart's announcement of the "cancellation" of $3,821,000 of agricultural debts owing to the government since 1917-22 was regarded here as a straight bid for support in Athabasca, but otherwise unimportant. Those debts were written off long ago for all practical purposes, inasmuch as many of the debtors had died and many more had abandoned their farms.

It was to be expected that the little newspaper which Hon. Lucien Maynard publishes would be distributed widely among Athabasca voters, for it blazoned the happy news of the "cancellation" as a great boon to farmers. It was all in type before the premier made his announcement public. But neither the premier nor Mr. Maynard mentioned the plan which had been offered to Alberta a little while ago and refused—the plan by which $150,000,000 of debt in Saskatchewan was cancelled by dominion and provincial governments, municipalities, banks and lending institutions. Even if the $3,821,000 cancellation in Alberta had meant something to farmers here, it still would be tiny compared with debts written off by other agencies. For instance, the banks always are reticent, for business reasons, about what concessions they give the public and they refuse to announce figures, but it is estimated that since 1930 the banks have cancelled about $16,000,000 of private debt in Alberta. Mr. Maynard's little propaganda sheet neglected to mention that, but the same edition of it did contain headlines abusing banks and other financial interests, without anything in the stories themselves to support the headlines.

G. L. MacLachlan, chairman of the Social Credit board, made last week a public statement which was surprising for its candor in view of the attitude which the government has adopted toward debts owing to although there is $17,000,000 owing in tax arrears, the government does not consider it necessary or beneficial to wipe out these arrears.

"That would leave no assets," he said. "The people do not want to avoid their debts; they want to be shown how they can pay. To wipe out the debt would work a hardship on the people who have invested."

Mr. MacLachlan made that statement during a plea for support of the "treasury branches" which the government has set up to operate, in effect, as private banks. He said that he was unable to promise that the bonus to purchasers of Alberta-made goods would be the three per cent that has been talked about, after all. He indicated that the government is still looking for some way to get the money to pay the bonuses, but he was quite sure that new taxes would not be levied to meet them. A compilation of figures, meanwhile, showed that only about four per cent of merchants in the chief centres of the province have agreed to handle the treasury branch cheques or vouchers. The treasury branch idea seems to be dead already, despite the banks' offer of co-operation.

The special session of the legislature which has been called for Nov. 15 is giving rise to many rumors about plans for legislation, about trouble brewing among Social Credit members against the premier, and about the possibility of a general provincial election being not far away.

Establishment of the Vegreville Constituency Unity Association in support of the proposals for united political action at the next Provincial General Election as advocated by the Unity Council of Alberta got under way at a meeting of residents of this Constituency, many of them farmers, held here on Tuesday evening. The meeting included representation from Vegreville, Ranfurly, Lavoie, Beaver Lake and Forty Nine Mile Creek and was addressed by E. W. Brunson of Calgary, secretary of the Unity Council, who explained fully the events leading up to the creation of the unity movement and the proposals for complete autonomy within each constituency and the nomination of a Unity candidate representing all citizens of all political parties within the constituency and the development of a provincial programme through elected council members.

The meeting unanimously endorsed the creation of a constituency Unity association and elected F. P. Austin of Ranfurly as temporary chairman. Mr. Austin has acted as a member of the Provisional Unity Council of Alberta under the chairmanship of John I. McFarland for this district. A temporary executive was named consisting of T. Russell, Major F. J. W. Flue, B.O. Gilpin with C. Clifton as Secretary.

A series of meetings for the purpose of explaining the Unity Movement throughout the Constituency were planned for the near future and a drive for membership in the new Association will be inaugurated at once.

A general Constituency organization meeting will be called by the Association shortly, at which time officers and a representative on the Unity Council will be elected and plans laid for a Unity nominating convention.

Infectious Bronchitis in Poultry

Infectious bronchitis also known as "laryngo tracheitis" and "infectious tracheitis" but very often referred to as "flu" or influenza, is an acute and highly contagious disease of fowls characterized by an intense inflammation of the respiratory tract.

SYMPTOMS OF THE DISEASE

Usually the first noticeable symptoms are sudden quietness in an otherwise active flock with a number of the birds showing watery eyes. Shortly after the appearance of these first general symptoms, the affected birds begin to show extreme difficulty in breathing, assume a squatting or sitting position and may be seen to gasp for breath. With each gasp for air the head and neck are extended upward as if to open the windpipe and the beak remains open. Inhalation is usually accompanied by a rattling sound as though the windpipe was partially obstructed with phlegm. After each breath, the birds head drops and hangs as though paralyzed tucked in against the neck. In many cases the bird appears to sleep between breaths. This difficult breathing may be interrupted at intervals by coughing and sneezing in an effort to expel blood and mucus from the air passages. There is often a discharge from the eyes and nose and this discharge together with the difficulty in breathing is one reason why this disease is often confused with roup, especially the diphtheritic form. Post mortem examinations usually reveal an intense inflammation of the respiratory tract and the windpipe may be filled with a sticky stringy mass which is often streaked with blood.

Infectious bronchitis usually spreads very rapidly and is accompanied by a high mortality—often upwards of 50 p.c. Well-fledged birds are frequently the first to go. Egg production of course declines rapidly. In the majority of cases the disease will run its course in a week to ten days.

Treatment—Much effort has been devoted to the development of an efficient cure for or preventative against infectious bronchitis but as yet no great measure of success has been attained. However, control measures can be applied which will assist materially in reducing the number of deaths. One of the most essential steps is to completely isolate affected birds or pens of birds immediately after the first symptoms of the disease are noted. This helps to prevent the infection from spreading throughout the flock. Care should be taken not to excite or handle the birds in any way as any struggling while they are in a weakened condition frequently causes a hemorrhage which results in death. All birds suffering from the disease in its advanced stages should be destroyed.

It is a good practice to remove all feed from the infected pens & no affected birds should receive any feed for a period of at least 48 hours. Great care must be exercised when starting the birds on feed again.

In most cases, it is desirable to dispose of all birds which recover. If this cannot be done, such birds should be isolated from the young growing stock or from any other poultry stock on the place which have not been directly exposed to the disease. After an epidemic, it is essential that all houses, equipment, etc. be thoroughly cleaned and sterilized. Lye used at the rate of one can to five gallons of water is a very good cleansing and disinfecting agent for this purpose. A lye solution of this strength is caustic and care should be taken not to get it in the eyes or on the hands and face. An old broom is a satisfactory tool to use for the application of a lye solution.

NEWS NOTES

W. D. Montgomery of Leavitt was a visitor in Raymond on Tuesday last.

Wm. A. Anderson who returned from Edmonton over the week-end stated that the Edmonton branch of the L. D. S. Church now numbered about 90 members and their work was progressing nicely. He reported, however, a decided need for missionaries there.

LOCAL SUPPORT NEEDED

The Yorkton Enterprise has a word to say to merchants who hand their printing to travelling salesmen, thus ignoring the local printer. It says: "The very people who give orders to those outside hollers the loudest about mail order houses and others who cut into their trade, and would no doubt think this was a pretty poor community if it did not have an up-to-date printing plant and a live local newspaper. They also profess to believe that a newspaper is worth while institution for encouraging community enterprise and organizations but are nothing short of community parasites when it comes to doing their part to help the newspaper function as it should."

Fireman: I'm telling you the day will come when women will get men's wages.

Seaman: You said it, big boy just as soon as we dock. —U.S. Maryland Catapult.

Yet another WPA hand is injured when the support or which he was leaning gave way. They don't build these shovel the way they used to.

THEY'RE BUYING

Retail merchants blissfully report that September closed with greatly increased buying. Shopping housewives are weary when they get home. "Never saw such crowds on the streets. Never saw so many people in the stores except just before Christmas."

Coming on top of statistics showing the greatest summer travel in many years, and the largest amounts spent on summer vacations, this is cheerful news. It indicates that while a lot of money has changed hands in the last two or three months, it is staying in circulation.

Economists have long pointed out that it is not volume of money, but velocity of its exchange, that makes prosperity. That velocity has picked up remarkably. More and more people are able to buy what they need.

ELECTRICAL DEVELOPMENTS

A tiny speck of green light moving on a screen of frosted glass shows airline dispatchers the exact direction of approach of planes, according to an announcement by Paul Go-borough, President of Aeronautical Radio, Inc., following recent tests of a new development for locating airplanes in flight. Even though visibility is completely masked out by fog or blinding rainstorms, the new device, which operates by radio waves, enables airport personnel to follow precisely the oncoming plane and, by return telephone, to guide its pilot to the field.

This major contribution to air navigation was developed by Bell Telephone Laboratories for the Western Electric and Northern Electric in Canada. When used in connection with the Civil Aero beacon system, the new instrument will enable airline operators to ascertain the location of their aircraft at any time.

The system provides for indication on any of ten wave lengths which may be selected remotely. As each pilot talks the spot of light moves instantly to its correct position on the circular screen of a cathode ray tube. Compass markings inscribed around the screen's edge enable the airport dispatcher to give the pilot his exact bearings by return radio telephone. A pick-up antenna of special design is employed and this may be situated at any remote point. Connection between the antenna and the dispatcher is made over a single telephone line.

and Woolsey in their comedies.

Honoring the 76th birthday of Mrs. Alfred Garner, 39 chilren, grandchildren and guests
met at the home of Mr. and Mr.
Arthur Garner on Sunday last
and enjoyed a birthday dinner.
Besides the members of the family living in Raymond there were present Mr. and Mrs. Ralph and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Garner of Hill Spring and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Skipworth of Hill Spring. The afternoon was spent in visiting.

This week we heard indirectly from three Raymond missionaries, all of whom are doing fine work. Wilford Heninger said "Maurice is in the mission office at Toronto now and is getting along just fine." Mrs.
C.R. Wing said "Guy is getting on wonderfully well and says he surely enjoys the paper that you send him each week." J.W.
Evans said "Alma is doing fine
and is getting now so he gets his Dutch and English mixed up. I had a letter from him I was going to bring but I forgot it." "J.W." does that every once in a while it seems.

SOME ARE, SOME AREN'T

A hillbilly watched a man at a tourist camp making use of a comb and brush, a toothbrush, a nail file and a whisk broom.

"Gee, mister!" he finally queried. "Are you always that much trouble to yourself?"

NEWS NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Mehew
and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Rouse were in Medicine Hat over the week-end.

The Poppy Sale this Saturday, November 5th, will be coducted by the Women's Institute.
Get your quarter or dime ready and get your poppy when the saleslady approaches you.

Don't forget the Armistice
Dance sponsored by the Legion
in the Opera House next Friday night. Proceeds from this Dance will be used by the Legion to maintain the memorial and grounds at the Town Hall corner and this purpose is certainly deserving of the support of all of us.

Registrations at the Hotel
during the past week include: D Morrow, Lethbridge, J.S. Jar-
man and G.H. Dick, Calgary;
Wallace Leavitt, Glenwood;
Hans Sorno, Robert Kingrep
and Mrs. E. Kingrep; H. E.
Giffen, and H. Hanson, Calgary;
H. Kawakawm, Vancouver; Mr.
and Mrs. E. Davidson and F.L.
